Grade 3-5-This biography describes Einstein's early struggle to harness and focus his extraordinary abilities; his relationships with his family and first wife; and, lending depth to the story, his most significant scientific discoveries. Brallier does an adequate job of presenting the facts and injects touches of humor into his text. He also discusses Einstein's exile from Germany in the early 1930s and his political views and activities, including the irony that the man who strove for a world without war helped to create the atomic bomb. There are several full-page sidebars, including one on "The Magnetic Earth" and another on "Hitler and the Nazis," and two time lines that contrast world events with those of the scientist's life. Black-and-white cartoon illustrations do little to enhance the text. Carol Fazioli, formerly at The Brearley School, New York City Copyright 2002 Reed Business Information, Inc.

We bought it for my daughter who was Einstein in her 3rd grade wax museum. She read it, for fun, until she was an Einstein expert. Great little book!

I absolutely love this series. Perfect addition to any homeschool library.

My 10 yr old reads every one of these books that he can get his hands on!

Bought for the grandkiddos, they love them, thanks!!!!

Perfect book for my science loving kiddo!

These are the best nonfiction books for 3rd through 6th graders for AR. As a teacher and a parent, these are always my first recommendation to meet their AR goal. We require 3 nonfiction books per 9 weeks and these can be read in just a few days. They are informative and the kids overwhelmingly enjoy them.

great books for my kids to read on their own!

My students love these books!
