A veteran graphic artist in the textile industry, Jeremy Elder possesses a distinctive style that's characterized by strong line work in ink, marker, watercolors, and oils.

Very cool !!!! I love this book, has so many beautiful pictures to color !!! BUT there is no option to ask a question here so if someone could kindly reply to my post, id greatly appreciate it!!! What would you say is the best way to color these? Markers? THANKS!!

Should clarify that the paper is wax paper (or something similar). I only have coloured pencils and they are useless on it and now I'm going to either give it to my niece or have to go buy something (probably markers) to colour with. Other than that the designs are beautiful. The cover is actually one of the pictures in the book so it gives a good idea, just know that all the black areas are actually stood black in the book as well.

Love the designs in this book and there are plenty of them. I'm not sure what the pages are made out of but they feel different. There is one picture per page which is great. Also, the pages are perforated. The pages are black except for where the design is laid out... gives your picture the outlined effect... makes it stand out more.

The pictures to color in this book are great. I would have appreciated kabuki masks as that is what the friend I bought them for likes the most about Japanese art, but the art that was there was good.

My daughter is into tattoo design, so I purchased this and some other Dover design books so that she could enjoy coloring these and learn to draw these and think about incorporating them into her designs. The stain glass makes it really pretty to show off in the windows at home.

Love this book, the way the pages are set up and the quality of the book is GREAT...

Nice mounted between plastic or glass with back light

hella dope
