Customer Reviews

'This is an immensely wide-ranging anthology, covering all the great themes of Jewish reflection and spanning the eras from biblical texts through the medieval Jewish philosophers to modern times. I have no doubt that it will quickly become the standard text for courses on the history of Jewish thought.' - Jonathan Sacks, Jewish Chronicle

Dan Frank is Professor of Philosophy, University of Kentucky, Oliver Leaman is Lecturer in Philosophy at Liverpool John Moores University and Charles Manekin is Professor of Philosophy, University of Maryland.

A gem.

I have yet to make as much use of this book as I had hoped, but bought it because I was so impressed upon poring over the copy used by my professor. I appreciate how it is set up, with commanding chapter and section headings whose very titles force me to read further. I enjoy being able to open the book at random, without having to read each chapter in sequence. I strongly recommend this book.

This item arrived expeditiously, as needed. The response was superb. The product quality is high, both in content and in the physical assembly of the text.
