Grade 1 "A" A fascinating glimpse into Chinese culture. Two rhyming sentences for each letter of the alphabet highlight people, places, and things commonly associated with the country, including the Great Wall, pandas, Chinese New Year, kites, and the Himalayan Mountains. Both the illustrated rhymes and the expository sidebars feature information about calligraphy, inventions, the importance of the color yellow, wheelbarrows, dough figurines, jasmine tea, an instrument called an ehru, and more. The couplets, chalk-pastel illustrations, and additional facts together create a comprehensive, nonlinear overview from geography and history to art and science. Although the meter of the text and the detailed pictures may not work for a group read-aloud, the title still has broad appeal. The alphabet portion could be shared one-on-one with younger students, while the additional facts keep the book relevant for independent readers and researchers. The wealth of information and the richness of the realistic drawings allow readers to savor a few letters at a time or to pore over the entire work again and again.â ”Julie R. I like the Sleeping Bear press alphabet series and this one is another good entry. China is covered by using dragons, Beijing, the forbidden city, acrobats and other familiar subjects. It is very nice. You can read the poetry to children and read more thorough information on side. It seems pretty accurate and the pictures are very engaging and beautiful.

I bought this book in preparation for a trip my family took to China, the illustrations are gorgeous! It’s a fun book for many ages and has nice informational passages as well.

Beautiful images.

This is a beautiful book with a lot of good information. My daughter, even at 2 loves to look at it. It has large type for easy reading out loud, with more in-depth text on the side for when the child gets larger. A great book for those with adopted Chinese daughters.

Beautifully illustrated with text for the younger child to understand and additionally each page includes a more detailed explanation with some history about each Chinese custom.

There was a hole in the book jacket that looked like someone had torn off a sticker. It was a gift so I had to give them the book without the jacket. It had been marked online as "new." Rather disappointed in that but otherwise the book was fine.

I have about 3 or 4 of these Chinese Alphabet books and this book is a definately up there as an awesome book about China A through Z with lots of interesting facts that some books do not have. I actually learned several new facts that I had not know prior. The way this book was done allows for the book to grow with your child as they grow. There is a picture representing the letter which I believe is done in oil paint and a few sentences of information. Then if you look to the left hand side of the page there is much more detailed information. Here is a break down of each letter. I hope this is helpful to you. A - Acrobats ( showing Lion dancers) B - Beijing ( shows the Forbidden City, Summer Palace) C - Chopsticks D - Dragon Dance E - Ehu pronounced Ay-roo ( an old musical instrument that only has 2 strings) this page also talks about the Chinese instruments. F- " Four Treasures of Study - brush, ink, paper and ink stone used for Calligraphy which is a must for every child to begin to learn since the Chinese language has no alphabet but characters that are for each word. G - Great Wall H - Himalayan Mountain range & Mount Everest I- Inventions - paper printing, compass, abacus, wheelbarrow & fireworks J - Jasmine Flower K - Kites & dough L - Lanterns ( also talks about the fifteenth day of the Spring festival marking the end of the Chinese New Year celebrations which is the Lantern Festival. M - Mongolians N - Chinese New Year O - Opera & shadow puppets P - Giant Pandas Q - Qin Terra-Cotta Warriors R - Rice Paddies and terraces S - Silk Road T - Transportation U - Umbrella V - Vegetables W - Wok X - Xie, Xie Mandarin for THANK YOU ( pronounced She-eh She-eh) Y - Yangtze River Z - Chinese Zodiac ( painted to look like paper cuts of the 12 animals)
